CONTRACTORS WIN GREEN, AT GREEN, BY DOING GREEN

New England HVAC Technicians Receive COOL SMART Awards for Excellence at Annual ACCA Golf Tournament

STOW, Mass., Oct. 5, 2007 – Eleven regional HVAC contractors were honored recently with outstanding performance awards during the ACCA – New England Golf Tournament at the Stow Acres Country Club in Massachusetts. Sponsored by National Grid and NSTAR Electric, the winners were recognized at a luncheon awards ceremony where Ray Isaac, ACCA executive committee member and incoming national chairman, made the keynote speech.

Launched in 2003, COOL SMART is a central air conditioner rebate program for National Grid and NSTAR Electric residential customers in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The initiative promotes the purchase and installation of ENERGY STAR[®]-qualified residential HVAC systems. For the second year in a row, the COOL SMART program has been the exclusive presenting sponsor of the ACCA Golf Tournament.

Manny Chaves, ACCA New England chapter president, said, “We are excited to provide the backdrop for the COOL SMART awards at the golf tournament. This program is very important because the contractors involved are helping to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and preserve the environment. We are proud to be affiliated with COOL SMART and pleased to recognize the award recipients among their peers at our golf luncheon.”

The COOL SMART awards are based on leadership, quality installations and active program participation. The top Massachusetts award recipients are as follows:

- B&D Air Conditioning and Gas Heating (Norwood)
- Boston Air (Bridgewater)
- Distributor Corporation of New England (Malden)
- Heating and Air Conditioning Services, Inc. (West Bridgewater)
- Keyes North Atlantic (Newton)
- Lennox (Wilmington)
- Marc’s Sheet Metal, Inc. (Assonet)
- Needham Oil and Air (Needham)
- Uptack Plumbing, Heating and Cooling (Haverhill)
